

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

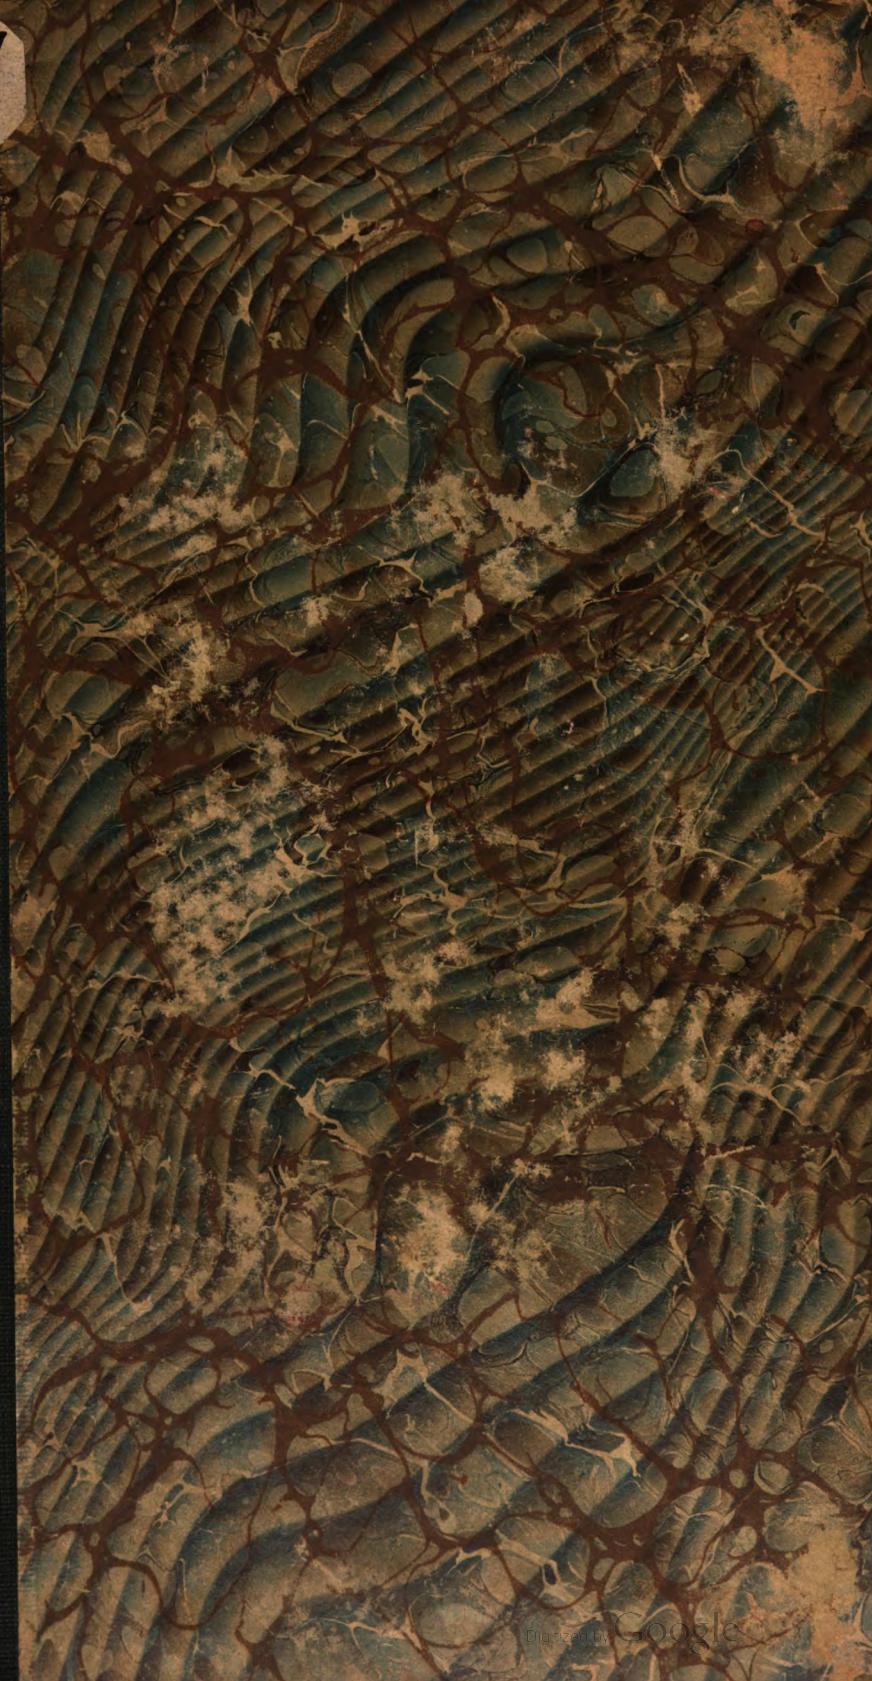

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FRENCH ELEMENTS IN MIDDLE ENGLISH

CHAPTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF ROMANCE INFLUENCE ON THE PHRASAL POWER OF STANDARD ENGLISH IN ITS FORMATIVE PERIOD

INTRODUCTION

GUSTAV KÖRTING, writing in 1888¹, expressed very truly—and his statement still holds—the imperfect nature of our knowledge of the relations of the French language to the English during the formative period that preceded the establishment of Standard English. ‘Die Frage,’ he says, ‘nach der Art und dem Umfange des von dem Französischen auf das Angelsächsische ausgeübten Einflusses ist weit verwickelter, als es auf den ersten Blick scheinen mag, und zur Zeit wenigstens dürfte sie mit irgend welcher wissenschaftlichen Genauigkeit gar nicht zu beantworten sein.’ Certain phases of the subject, it must be admitted, have been treated with scientific exactness. In the sphere of phonology we have the exposition of the phonology of the French elements in MidE. in the treatises of Sturmfels² and Behrens³, to mention only the most important. But on a subject closely allied with the phonology of loan-words in English, the influence of French upon the phonology of native words, we lack a definitive treatment. That this influence operated in word-stress is certain. Note, too, for example, that AS. nemnan appears in MidE. not only as nemnen, but nempnen: theos meiden . . . wes iuliane inempnet, Jul., 4; theochinus inempnet, St. Marh., 1. Seth he let his name nempne, Holy Rode (Ashm.), 29. Similarly AS. samnian appears not only as samn(i)en, but also sampnen: sompnin, Marh., 15 (S-B); Wold he so sone sampne his host, R. B., Chron., 4978. The abundant instances of m p n in similar position in OFr. point to the source of this consonantal group; cf. dampner (<damnare), dampne-dee (<domine-deus), solempne (<solemnem). The character and extent of such influence, then, call for definition. In orthography, while we have the rough outline of the making over of our orthography in conformity with French orthography, and have many interesting details afforded us¹, we are again without full and precise account of the process and its subsequent effects, though the history of words like corpe (e.g. OFr. cors > MidE. cors; Fr. corps > E. corps(e)) makes one suspect the prevalence of a somewhat extensive influence. The problem of the introduction of French words into MidE. has received most attention; witness the word-lists of Morris², W. W. Skeat, Miss Skeat³, Behrens, and Sturmfels, and, for individual works, of Einenkel⁴, Fritzsche⁵, and others. But, while we have the lists of words, we have no systematic study of the semasiology of those words. Were the fine discriminations of the foreign language preserved? If so, what a testimony to the intimacy of the English speaker with the language drawn upon! If, for example, the MidE. air in its various uses and shades of meaning closely corresponds to OFr. air in its uses and shades of meaning—which indeed it does—and if this conformity in meaning and use is sustained by a similar correspondence among the loan-words generally, we have a revelation of the subtle and far-reaching interfusion of the French and English spirit in the MidE. period. Again, how far can the French words taken into MidE. be regarded as essential to the expression of new ideas and manners consequent on a new order of civilization⁶? At times they were essential; witness the OFr.

titles of address which we adopted. Again, to what extent did the foreign vocabulary change or restrict the meaning of native words? Here, indeed, was a wide realm of change. Take, as examples, AS. bing, as influenced by cause, affaire, matière; AS. sum as restricted in part by certain; AS. prician, priccan, to prick, as compared with its meaning in, 'Of pricking and of hunting for the hare,' Ch., Prol. C. T., 191, manifestly imitating OFr. poindre, prick, gallop, put spurs to: Mais Aiols point, Aiol, 3103 De quel maniere a els puindrunt, M. de France, Eli., 207.

Nor can any one yet adequately define the part French played in the rapid changes that came upon AS. in the years immediately following the Conquest with respect to the loss or retention of inflexions and the settlement of grammatical relations and of the word order in phrase and sentence. We still quarrel over elementary questions like s-plurals¹. Something of course has been gained by special monographs in the realm of syntax: the influence of the French present participle absolute on the corresponding form in MidE.²; the influence of French on the MidE. relative 'pe which'³, &c. Mätzner, in his 'Englische Grammatik,' naturally noted the correspondences of OFr. and MidE. especially in the case of grammatical similarities such as the government of verbs. Einenkel⁴, too, shows a very keen sense for the recognition of French influence in MidE. syntax. Unfortunately his volume has special reference to the language of Chaucer. Dealing chiefly with the language at a time when most of its characteristics had passed their stage of growth and had become fixed in nature, Einenkel was not concerned with the historical view of his subject and offers us little beyond interesting examples and parallels. Of greater importance is his review of MidE. syntax⁵, which, though limited in scope, lays the first foundation of scientific knowledge in the department of which it treats. Kellner⁶, likewise, is advancing and co-ordinating our knowledge of OFr. influence, and his future work will, without doubt, make important contributions to the history of English syntax.

Lacking, then, the definitive works in many aspects of the problem of French influence in MidE., we can easily see how defective and misleading the books of Thommerel¹, Dickmann², &c., are in professing to give an account of the rise of the English language. Morsbach's work on the origin of the new English literary language³ has a most inviting title and a most disappointing content. Granting that the language of the earliest English documents of London is in substantial agreement with the language of Chaucer, when 'language' is restricted to a basis of vowels, consonants, and inflexions, how much further are we towards understanding the rise of that new English literary language, which was marked not merely by peculiarities of phonology and morphology, but by most extensive changes in phraseology, idiom, syntax?

Impossible as it is yet to write the history of the rise of Standard English, we are at least able to discern the truth in some particulars of that history. No statement, indeed, concerning French influence in MidE. could be more false, however generally held, than that which Körting makes, to go back to the work first quoted, when he says: 'Nur im Wortschatz ist das Englische halbfranzösisirt, im Uebrigen ist es germanisch geblieben, und wo es dennoch dem Französischen ähnlich geworden zu sein scheint (wie z. B. in der Gleichförmigkeit der substantivischen Pluralbildung, in der Comparationsumschreibung, etc.), ist dies nicht die Folge einer Angleichung an das Französische, sondern erklärt sich durchaus befriedigend aus den der Sprache von jeher eigenen Entwickelungsneigungen'⁴.

There is reason to believe that the close and continued influence of one language on another, either in its colloquial or its literary form, will always affect the latter in ways more subtle than the mere borrowing of words. Latin constructions are a factor always to be considered in every AS. translation from the Latin. Latin itself borrowed many idioms and constructions from Greek. The Stanford Dictionary⁵, 'devoted to the meaning and history of the foreign words and phrases which occur so frequently in English literature,' is a vast storehouse of illustrations of the extent to which, in modern times, English speakers and writers have availed themselves of the phrasal resources of other languages. Every reader of MidE. and OFr. romances must be struck with their most extensive agreements—not merely in the conception of manners and life, in their general literary form—not in vocabulary alone, but in more subtle modes of expression, in the idioms used, in the turn of the phrases employed. The present dissertation aims to show that Middle English became, not only in its vocabulary, but in its phrasal forms, 'halbfranzösisch'; that its phrasal power is indeed pre-eminently Romance in character. It follows after those treatises of the French loan-words in the vocabulary of MidE. which we owe, as already stated, to Morris, the Skeats, Behrens, Sturmels, Einenkel, Fritzsche, and others, seeking to establish a higher and more subtle romanization of our speech than that of its vocabulary.

The truth is that Middle English underwent a romanization of its phrasal power more extensive than, and virtually as early as, the romanization of its vocabulary. Professor Earle gives us a wrong point of view in his striking picture of the new English when he says: 'If we want to describe the transition from the Saxon state-language of the eleventh century to the Court-English of the fourteenth, . . . it comes in fact just to this—That a French family settled in England, and edited the English language¹.' It would be a truer figure to say that the homely English family went to school to French masters, assimilated the modes of thought and forms of expression of a new civilization, and then, and by reason of that assimilated culture, made good its right, even as an English family, to enter into the literary and social life of the new times. The object of the present study is to show how, to what extent, and at what time the English language schooled itself to new phrasal expressions, which were often without equivalents in AS., but which sometimes displaced equivalent AS. expressions; to show how far those phrasal changes proceeded under the influence of OFr.—a natural outcome of the relation of English, in its formative period, to French, in social life, in education, and in legal, ecclesiastical, military, and literary affairs; to show the chronological movement of those phrasal changes so as to establish a comparison with the movement of change in the vocabulary; to draw from any ascertained results some conclusions respecting the character and chronology of the formation of Standard English.

The chapters here published are significant parts of a wider survey of the field of work; they will be found, it is hoped, characteristic of various important aspects of phrasal influence, and sufficiently detailed to warrant the conclusions drawn. The citations, with but a very few exceptions, are taken from the literature preceding 1400, by which time Standard English had been evolved and established. Of the works of reference obligations are acknowledged in especial to Bosworth-Toller, 'Anglo-Saxon Dictionary' (B-T); James A. H. Murray, 'New English Dictionary' (NED); Stratmann-Bradley, 'Middle-English Dictionary' (S-B); Godefroy, 'Dictionnaire de l'ancienne langue française' (God.); La Curne, 'Dictionnaire historique de l'ancienne langue française' (La C.); Littré, 'Dictionnaire de la langue française' (L.).

I. VERBAL PHRASES

THE change of a language from a synthetic to an analytic base, necessitating the growth of phrasal forms for inflexions and conjugations, favours analogically the phrasal expression of verbal notions; e. g. miserari, avoir pitié. MidE saw a profuse growth of verbal phrases overrun the language, which at times choked out the scanty verbal phrases of AS. origin. Two chapters are here presented illustrative of this phrasal growth in verbal constructions: (i.) AS. beran, MidE. beren; (ii.) AS. niman, MidE. nimen, taken.

I. BERAN, BEREN, BEAR.

AS. BERAN signified (see B-T.): I. (1) bear, carry; (2) bear up, over; (3) bear away; (4) bear on one (of weapons, &c.); (5) wear on body; (6) sustain weight of; (7) tolerate; (8) march (?), lead (?), El., 45. II. bring forth (1) of plants; (2) of mammalia. The various compounds of beran show no marked distinctions in meaning other than those conveyed by the compounded particle. This verb appears to lack, like its compounds, all traces of phrasal use other than in the epic phrases, as Gewitað forð beran | wépen ond gewædu, ic éow wísigē, Beo., 291 = 'march forward.'

MIDDLE-ENGLISH BEAR. The various senses of AS. beran were preserved, with the exception of I. 8. I. (1) was extended to immaterial objects¹, as 'to beren ure louerd ihesu crist on heorte,' Trin. Coll. Hom., 47 (NED). I. (6) was extended to figurative use, 'bear sway,' [He] schoilde haue Ibore the heritage, Beket, 2409 (NED); II. (1) was extended to the earth (fig.) bearing minerals or vegetable productions. A very characteristic sense, very late, is of 'thrusting through' (of weapons). Fresh senses of bear are very numerous (see NED).

We are concerned here however chiefly with the phrasal uses of bear, which illustrate important differences of AS. and MidE. syntax.

PHRASAL USES OF BEREN RESP. OFR. PORTER. bear witness (NED, 2 c): Barr witness to þe follc, Orm., 18268. Ne ber þou witnes, C. M., 6478. Als þe boke beres wytnesse, R. R. H., Pr. of C., 51. Als þe buk says and bers witnes, R. R. H., Pr. of C., 585; A. R., 236; A. and M., 1285; R. R. H., Lam., 85; A. E. L., St. Paula, 72; V. and V., 59, 16; 97, 19; 141, 5. Þou sall noghte bere false wyttnes, R. R. H., P. T., p. 11.

OFr. offers earlier types of this phrase. Testemuine m'en poent cil de Fescamp porter, Wace, Rou, 1356. E bien li porterent tesmoing cil qui là furent, Villeh., 179. Porter tesmoign de bone vie, R. Rose, i. 273.

The AS. equivalents are: Ne béo þu on liesre gewitnysse ongén þfnne néhstan, Gr., Ex., 20, 16 = non loqueris contra proximum tuum falsum testimonium. Lease sibbe ne sceal mon syllan, B. R., p. 17, l. 7. Swá swá eall min mægð me is to witan, Æl., Lives, viii. 42.

bear the flower, blome (NED, 3 b): Of alle knyghtes he bar þe blome, R. B., Ch., 4166. And wikked men wiþ honoure | Schul her beo maistres and bere þe floure, A. E. L., St. Aug., 1019; Pol. P., i. 216; Ch., Monkes T., 107; Torrent of P., 2491.

OFr. offers earlier types of this phrase. De cortoise et d'onor, | Portoit Engletere la flor, Wace, Brut, 10775. Bien en porte la flor | Ma dame cui j'aor, R. u. P., i. 60, 64. Certes, dame, ne m'en chaut pas, | Que ge en ai porte la flor, ib., i. 69, 47.

bear the prize: Dat a tre . . . Dat ouer alle oðre bered pris, G. and Ex., 325. Of manhod he bar þe pris, R. B., Ch., 4172. And of beute bar þe prys, R. B., Ch., 6180; Oct., 398 (SE.); Ip., 155.

OFr. affords the model of this phrase. De tutes les terres de la | porta le pris e la valur, M. de Fr., Mil., 330.

Through the association of los and prize as a stock phrase of the Romance poets as in:—Por los et pris d'armes conquerre, Fl. and Lir., 1184. K'en totes terres ou entra(n)st | Le los & le pris [en] portast, Ipom., 131, 1151, 1588—we get:

bear the los: Of all the sennes tha thar beth, | Thos bereth that los, Wm. of Sh., 115. Of alle oure beleue she bare þe los, R. B., Hand. S., 868. Dat ich day sir Arthour | Þe los he bar & þe honour, A. and M., 2983.

Le los & le pris [en] portast, Ipom., 131. Ceste porte la seignorie | E l'excellence e la maistrie, Ch. d. N., 15130 (cf. Ch. Prol. C. T., 165).

According to NED a bell was sometimes given as a prize at tournaments, early proof of which is not adduced; OFr. clocheteur (God., ix. 112) and even 'bell-wether' suggest a different origin.

bear the bell: Off bounte bereth the bell, Ip., 4782; 5893. And, let se which of you shal bere the belle | To speke of love aright, Ch., Troil., iii. 149. The phrase appears still later as 'win þe gre,' Sir Egl., 11.

bear the face, &c. (NED, 3 c): Towarde a foreste I bere the face, Pearl, 6, 7.

Cf., Tornés ount le vis, Pierre de L., ii. 150. Ne vus ni il n'i porterez les piez, Ch. de R., 260. Porter le pié, Ch. d. N., ii. 13738.

A parallel idiom is, & bar þe breste on þe by-fore, R. B., Ch., 4665.

bear fellowship, company (NED, 3 d, 1): Alle þai felauschip bare, C. M., 12568. And I with yow, to bere yow compayne, Ch., L. G. W. Ariad., 173. If eni so wod were, | That Seint Thomas consaillede and cumpaignye bere, Beket, 990 (NED); R. B., Ch., 73.

OFr. offers: Com je vous ai porté mauvaise conpaignie, Berte, 2182. De porter sei et conpaignie, Troie, 5847, &c.

bear (an, on) in hand (NED, 3 e): We wolleth the bere an hond: that he ert his traitour, Beket, 909. [= maintain an assertion against] (NED): Ye bere me wrong on honde, C. M., 15922 (Trin.). Bereth hir an hand that sche hath done this thing, Ch., M. of L. T., 522. Tithandis . . . that bare on hand, How . . ., Bruce, xvii. 82.

The NED looks upon all these as an English imitation of Fr. maintenir, Med L. manūtenēre. This foreign influence is borne out by the phrase 'bear on hand' = carry on, maintain, which seems to point to 'tenir sur main' = maintenir: Il n'est possible de tenir trois guerres sur main, Litt. de Louis XII, t. iv, p. 14 (in La C., main).

bear oneself, deport oneself, behave (NED, 4): Hu me schal beren him wiðuten, A. R., 4. Þe god quene gaf him in conseile, | To luf his folk bituene . . . | Bere him till his barons, R. B., Ch., 98. Which of yow that bereð him best of alle, Ch., C. T. Prol., 798; K. T., 589. Swa apertly and weille thame bar, Bruce, xiv. 77.

The OFr. construction is similar. Que cis las dolereus Guillaumes, | Qui si bien s'est vers moi portés, Fl. et Bl., 10695 (L.).

bear arms, in technical sense of 'be of age' (NED, 6¹ (special sense)): ȝif ich euer armes bere | And be of elde, B. of H., 314. Al þat miȝt armes bere, Roul. and Vern., 80.

OFr. has early examples of this phrase. Et dès qu'il pot armes porter, Brut, 2265.

The AS. expressions of this idea are: Ȣera þe to gefeohte faran mihton, Gr., Num., i. 45. Ȣæt he woroldwæpno wæg, Bl. Hom., 213. Toðæm Ȣæt he sceolde woroldlicum wæpnum onfon, Bl. Hom., 213.

bear the crown = rule: Alle halely and his croun bere | Wele, and in pees with-outen were, Pr. of C., 408.

OFr. examples: De tote Espaigne corone d'or portant, Alesc., 7824. Qui d'or corone en cief portast, Brut, 2332; Ch. d. N., 21921.

bear likeness, visage, form (NED, 7): Bot of his liknes þat he bar, C. M., 18823 [NED]. Which bereth visage of mannes kinde, Gower, Confessio Aman., i. 339 (NED).

In OFr.: Figure porte de diable, Brut, 757; 8502.

'He bare of Aser, a schyp of golde,' Sir Egl., 1186.

'A cinq labiaus de gueules l'ainsnés fils le porta,' Berte, 3222.

bear name (NED, 7 b) : After which planete the day berith his name, Ch., Astrol., ii. §§ 12, 23.

OFr.: Le nom à son oncle porta, Brut, 113.

bear (with feelings, = harbour, entertain) (NED, 9) ; bear faith, &c. (NED, 9) : Sall ðu noȝt ðe riȝt-wise weren, | Or for hem ðe toðere með beren, G. and Ex., 1044. Pat he sholden him god feyth bere, Hav., 2853. Until his broþor nith (var. read. ire) he bare, C. M., 1069 (NED). Ye ber him right nan aw (var. r. awe), ib., 12096 (NED). Bereð hire menske, A. R., 140. To Beues a bar gret envie, Bev. of H., 839. Pet bereth longe wreþe ayens opren, Ayenb., 8. To beran nið ne onde to nane cristene monne, O. E. H., 125. For ðare gode trewðe ðe ðu him bere, V. and V., 103, 31. And to all cristenei men | beren pais and luve bi-twen, G. and Ex., 7.

OFr. has a rich variety in equivalent phrases : Co dist Rollanz : 'Pur quei me portez ire ?' Ch. de R., 1722; Tris., i. 29. Dont me déüst porter rancune, Renart, 406; also R. Rose, 1245. Si com tu sez que je t'ai foi portée, Alesc., 2284. Quant à Deu ne portames foi, Adam, p. 31; also Troie, 1420; Mort Garin, 1789; M. de Fr., Eli, 84; Eneas, 3318; Fab., iii. 73. Fei li porterent e honur, A. et A., 32; A. N. Ch., 228. Et soy et honnor se porterent, Fab., i. 319; R. Rose, 1032; G. de P., 783; Machault, p. 117. A qui nos portum fei e amor, Ch. d. N., ii. 8209; 17327; 29834. Ne m'en deit porter matalent, | Corroz ne ire longueument, Eneas, 9969. Si que Deus ne t'en port hañne, Ch. d. N., ii. 14837. Li porterent mult grant envie, ib., ii. 22554. Ains li porterai loialtei, R. u. P., i. 70, 40. Que l'en doies porter homage, Wace, Brut, 2399. Ki ne porte a hume ne fei ne amistie, Rou, ii. 3479. Feuté | A porter mais à son aë, Brut, 6078. Que pais et foi li porterons, ib., 13547. 'Porter la foi et homage' was the oath of the vassal to his lord, Du Cange (homagium).

In AS. simple verbs represented many of these notions : Ne tyn þu þíne néahgebúras, Gr., Lev., xix. 18. The Authorized Version 'bear a grudge' = MidE. beren nið = OFr. porter ire, rancune. Note: 'bear company' was expressed by geþeodrædene niman wið (associate with, B-T) : Gif hwylc bróðor . . . gedyrstlæcð, þæt he on æniȝe wisan æniȝe ȝeþeodrædene njime wið þone amansumandan, B. R., 50, 10.

CONCLUSION. AS. beran, virtually phraseless and narrow in its range of meanings, undergoes great development of meaning and phrasal use in MidE. The close similarity of MidE. and OFr. in phrasal uses of bear, resp. porter, even to the copying of precise phrases like bear the los, bear the flower, bear good faith, bear witness, together with the supplanting of certain AS. expressions for such phrases (e.g. sibbe syllan), establishes OFr. as the paramount influence in the phrasal extension of this verb. The chronology of the extension shows the beginning of the influence in the early part of the thirteenth century; its full sway in the first half of the fourteenth century.

II. NIMAN, NIMEN, RESP. TAKEN, TAKE.

AS. NIMAN had (B-T) as its significations: (1) take, receive, get; (2) take, keep, hold; (3) take, catch (not figuratively); (4) contain; (5) take (with one) = carry, bring; (6) take forcibly, seize, carry off.

It entered into many verbal phrases:—andan niman, take offence; bysne niman, take example, warning: And bysne niman, Æ., Lives, xxiv. 66; casum niman, take a case (in grammar); eard niman, take up one's abode; feorh beniman, take away life: Heora feorh him benam, Gr., Jud., viii. 2; fréondráden niman, hold friendly intercourse with; frið niman, make peace with: se consul genam friþ wið Ispanie, Oros, 5, 14; 46, 7; geléafan niman, believe; graman niman, take offence: nam to malche fulne graman, Æ., Lives, xxiii. 694; láre niman, receive instruction; lufe niman, take affection for; móð niman, take courage; naman beniman, take one's name: þonne benimð Wisle Ilfing hire naman, Oros, 20, 11; nfode niman, take pleasure: Wé . . . níode náman, Beo., 2117; sibbe niman, make terms; sige niman, gain the victory; ware niman, take care; wæpna niman, take up arms; wed niman, take pledge: Gif þu wed nime, Gr., Ex., xxii. 26; weg niman, take one's way; wlcstówa niman, pitch camp. Add to these certain phrases in which prepositions enter: on gemynd niman, to bear in mind; on hæft niman, to take captive, &c.

MidE. NIMEN continues the sense of AS. niman, but develops new meanings, steadily following in the wake of the wider signification of OFr. prendre. The introduction of ON. taka, take, seize, catch, grasp, reach, &c., which constantly won ground on nimen during the MidE. period, contributed much to the growth of phrases, but the evidence of the chronology and of the authors here cited shows that in the main we have to reckon with French influence and not Norse in the extension of the phrasal use of take during the period of which we treat. The definition of ON. phrasal influence is much to be desired.

The chief developments of meaning are:—

1. Seize upon one (of desire, sickness, &c.): Hunger him nam, G. and Ex., 1490. But yef suche thurst take you, Rath. O. R., 280. A romance, and hit me took | To rede and drive the night away, Ch., Duch., 48 f. Him tok seknes, A. E. L., St. Aug., 1635.

This phrase is interesting as showing the development of AS. lēaf, leave = permission, licence; but not farewell. Congé in OFr. had both senses; OFr. had not only donner congé [= permettre], AS., lēaf syllan; but also prendre congé = to take leave, to say farewell to. MidE. extends AS. lēaf to agree with OFr.

Nus ne prendrez mie en vain le non nostre seignur, Rubric, Man. Pech., f. 1311.

In AS. on ydel was freely used for 'in vain,' but not with niman. In Deut. we read: Ne nemne ge drihtnes naman on fðel, Gr., Deut., v. 11 = non usurpabas nomen domini dei tui frustra. For þam þe ne bið he unscildig, se þe for fðelum þinge his naman nemð = qui non erit impunitus, qui super re vana nomen ejus assumperit. Cf. also, Se þe his naman on yðel nemð, Gr., Ex., xx. 7, = non assumes nomen domini tui in vanum.

The Latin of course frequently used in vanum. Cf. Non habebis nomen dei tui in vanum, Ne have þu þines drihtenes nome in nane aða ne in nane idel speche,' O. E. H., i. 11.

take to heart: þat word tok he yuel til herte, R. B., 2317. þat nam he most to herte, Wm. of P., 1203.

An AS. construction as well: tō gemaecan niman, to suna niman, &c. Similarly, take to party: Cam took Aufryk til his partie, R. B., Ch., 228. Take to prisoner: He toke him there to presun-nere, Av. of A., 33.

take (to) witness: (a) Vor oure godes ich take to witnesse, R. G., Ch., 1257; P. Pl. (A.), xi. 41. God i take to my witnes, A. E. L., St. Paula, 8. (b) I take witnes of seint Poule, ib., 22; (1382) Pol. P., i. 250; Torrent, 1220.

In AS. the sense of these phrases is expressed: Ic hæbbe to dæg to gewitnissee heofen and eorðan, Gr., Deut., iv. 26. Ic clipie me to dæg to gewitnysse, ib., xxx. 19. God to gewitan hæbbende, A.E. Lives, xxiii. B, 78. God him to gewitan . . . foresettende, ib., xxiii. B, 270. And Crist me is gewita, ib., xxx. 359.

Though 'to gewitan niman' apparently does not occur in AS. it is a possible construction: cf. 7 hu Brettaine namon Maximianum him to casere ofer his willan, Oros., 7, 11.

The French construction is rather traire à tesmoin: A tesmoi en traïroie maint franc home gentil, Aiol., 10, which is imitated in: To wittnesse ich drawe echone, R. G., Ch., 694. Phrases like (b) are scarcely contracted forms of (a); they are analogical to bear witness, &c., porter témoins.

CHRONOLOGY. The verb niman had in AS. a fair amount of phrasal power. The extension of the phrasal power of nimen resp. taken in MidE. begins in the first half of the thirteenth century, when take is found in phrasal use with blood, counsel, end, land, leave, part, right, sea, ȝeme. The second half of the century sees the phrases with battle, intent, harbour (inn), sorrow, vengeance. A large extension is noted in the first half of the fourteenth century: take amends, the cross, comfort, day, death, flesh, flight, habit, haven, hunt, keep, lordship (mastery), purpose, rest, standing, agrief, in vain, to heart. A somewhat greater influence is found in the second half of the fourteenth century: take the air, advantage, arms, arrivage, avis, baptism, cure, course, ease, mercy, order, tent, truce, agame, in cure, in good intent, in patience, in thank, in disdain, in mercy, to ill, to rede, to purpose.

CONCLUSION. The AS. niman on its phrasal side was in part in accordance with OFr.; e.g. bysne niman, prendre exemple; ware niman, prendre garde; weg niman, prendre chemin; wif niman, prendre femme. It was not difficult for such phrases to survive the struggle of the transition period. In some cases, e.g. the phrases frið niman, sige niman, the AS. phrases, unsupported by French parallels, disappeared, and their place was taken by equivalent Romance phrases. One may well believe that a considerable phrasal extension of take would have arisen from the original stock of expressions in AS., had our language gone on its way unimpeded; but the close correspondence of the new phrasal uses of take with those of prendre, a correspondence detailed and exact even in expressions so idiomatic as take to heart, and the uniform priority in date of the French parallels, lead one to conclude that the extension of the phrasal power of take in MidE. is due in the main to the influence and example of the phrasal use of OFr. prendre.

II. ADVERBIAL PHRASES OF NEGATION

THE present chapter seeks to establish the influence of OFr. on MidE. as respects the figurative negation, i.e. the negative particle emphasized by the addition of some well-known object of little or no value: Ne crient assaut une pome parée, Alesc., 4230. Daz hueſe niht ein blaſt, Walther, 103, 36. His helme was not worth a bene, Ip., 6238.

The earliest treatment of this negation on the Germanic side was made by Jacob Grimm in his 'Deutsche Grammatik,' iii. p. 728 (ed. Göttingen, 1831). Speaking of MHG. he said: 'Bei unsern Dichtern des xiii. Jh. begegnen sich die meisten Versuche, den verneinenden Ausdruck des Satzes durch ein hinzugefügtes Bild zu heben'; and he adduces examples of the use of blaſt, bast, ber, strō, spriu, riet, bône, wicke, nuz, ei, brōt, hâr, &c., from many MHG. poets. Thirty years later, in 1862, a more systematic and thorough treatment of this feature of MHG. was made by Dr. Ignaz v. Zingerle, 'Über die bildliche Verstärkung der Negation bei mittelhochdeutschen Dichtern'.

A similar study has not been made of the Scandinavian group of languages, because of lack of material, concerning which Grimm remarks: 'Verbindungen sinnlicher Subst. mit ecki, icke, ikke, ähnlich den von 1-19 angeführten Verstärkungen des Hochd. nicht, scheinen selten. Doch ein dän. ikke en smule ist S. 730 beigebracht. Sæm. 182^a liest man: hôt þín hræðomk ecki lyf (minas tuas omnino non timeo): das lyf erklären alle Ausleger ungenügend; wenn es sich für lauf (folium) oder etwas Verwandtes nehmen liesse, so würde ein passender Sinn gewonnen,' u. s., p. 740.

Gothic, OHG., and OS. have nothing similar to show except the negative particle strengthened by (Goth.) wafht, 'thing,' corresponding to our use of nothing.

On the Latin side the most complete treatment I have met is that of Alfred Schweighæuser (see infra). A more recent and, in respect to the ultimate force of nihil, malli, a more trustworthy treatment is by Wölfflin in his article in the Archiv, 1894, i, 'Der Genitiv des Wertes und der Ablativ des Preises.' The use of nihil [= ni bili, not a thread], of flocci, a flock of wool, nauci, an empty nut, pili, hair, hettæ, and of various coins—terunci, semissis, assis, dupondii, tressis—with the verbs non facere, pendere, putare, deputare, habere, censare, aestimare, or in popular speech existimare, shows the extent to which the figurative negation had its roots in Latin, especially in the familiar correspondence, the comic dramatists, and popular speech. The 'homo trioboli' of Plautus, translated directly from the not uncommon Gk. τριωβόλον ἄξεσ, illustrates the ease with which one language will adopt the current phrase of another.

For the French brief mention is made by Grimm, 'Deutsche Grammatik'; Raynouard, 'Grammaire comparée,' p. 370; Diez, 'Grammaire des langues romanes,' iii. 935; and D. Gilles, 'De l'emploi de la négation dans la langue française,' Bruxelles, 1877. Very full, though, to judge from my own collections, still very incomplete treatments are made by Alfred Schweighæuser (S.), in an article 'De la Négation dans les langues romanes du midi et du nord de la France,' published in the 'Bibliothèque de l'École des Chartes,' Paris, III. ii, iii (1850, 1851); and by F. Perle, 'Zeitschrift für Romanische Philologie,' ii. 408 ff. Definitive treatments of the figurative negations in the various Romance languages are much to be desired.

For MidE. we have the work of Dr. Hein, referred to below.

THE AS. NEGATIONS.—The negation in AS. was very simple. In general, ne with the verb was sufficient to express the negative. It might be strengthened with some form of wiht, originally 'creature,' 'thing,' or in the very late days of AS. by ping. A few negative adverbs, such as nalles, náteshwón, were in use. These, and a trace, perhaps, of a figurative formation in hand-hwfl, moment, and the very late use of fót with a verb of motion, virtually comprise the negative adverbial expressions in AS.:—Ne sleh ðu, Gr., Ex., xx. 13; Ne þurfan ȝé nóht besorgian hwæt ȝc sprecan, Bl. Hom., p. 163; Ic ne mæg wuht oncnawan, Cd., 26

(B-T). And se penda (this Penda) ne cuðe be criste nan þincg, Æl. Lives, xxvi, 153; Nelle ic . . . oferfléon fótes trem, Beo., 2525; sótmél landes, By., 275; Swa sceal mæg dóñ, | nealles inwit-net | óðrum bregdan, Beo., 2167; Þa nolde Seon þe cyning náteshwon him tíðian, Gr., Num., xxi, 23.

In contrast with this paucity of negative adverbial expressions, the wealth of MidE. is striking. Objects from organic and inorganic nature, plants, animals, parts of the body, fruits, articles of food and clothing, measures of value, weight, &c., all are put into service in a vivid colloquial style. The change is startling, and forces one naturally to seek an explanation for it in the language most closely associated with MidE., and in which the figurative negation shows a most luxuriant growth.

THE OFR. NEGATION.—Even in the earliest stages of the French language the French negative was thoroughly figurative—the negative particle was constantly strengthened by words used tropically. All or almost all the tropical value had, even in early French, been lost in negations with mie < micam: Il ne s'esveillet mie, Ch. de R., 724; pas < passum: Ne l'devez pas blasmer, Ch. de R., 681; point < punctum: Respont Roland: ne sui point empiré, Ronc., p. 92 (L.); mot < multum: Il n'en set mot, n'i ad culpe li ber, Ch. de R., 1173; rien < rem: Mais en enfer ne me vaut rien, St. Brandan, 1456; goutte < guttam: Et gute ne vedebit, Rois, p. 48 (L.); pied < pedem: Del regne la meitié . . . Ja n'en aurai, dist il, ne plein pas ne plein pié, Rou, 658; dei < digitum: Tant cum Tiebalt tendra de ma terre plein dei, ib., 4325.

In addition to these, in which in more than one case a strong trace of the figurative value of the expression is to be noticed, there are very many negative phrases in which the figurative value is the chief characteristic. It is necessary, in order to understand the character of French during the period of its early influence on English, to bring these forward. The examples that immediately follow are restricted to dates anterior to 1200, consequently before the first indisputable occurrence of the figurative negation in MidE., and are taken in most cases from Norman texts: c. 1040, Alexis, 77, Que l'orgueil de ce monde ne prisoit un fromage; c. 1060, Pèl. de Ch., 575, N'en i remaindrat ja pesant une escaligne [= onion]; c. 1080, Ch. de R., 3338, Tute lur lei un denier ne lur vult; ib. 1879, En la bataille deit estre forz e tiers, | O altrement ne vult quatre deniers; 1100+, Char. de N., 626, Jà de la moie n'auroiz mès plain un gant; ib. 278, N'i ai conquis vaillant un fer de lance; ib. 428, N'en ai éu vaillant un oef pelé; 1133+Ste. Marg. 116, Ne prise pas une chevele | Quant que li ai dit ne promise; c. 1150, Cour. L., 156, N'a vève feme vaillant un angevin [small coin]; ib. 909, La vielie broigne ne li valut un paile; ib. 2372, 2394, 2418, Mar i perdra vaillant une maaille; ib. 838, Ne pris-ge mie nés un trespass de vent; ib. 1049, Ne l'empira vaillant un esperon; ib. 1052, Ne valent mès ti cop un haneton; c. 1150, Clef d'Amour, 1169, Quer homme ne vaut un bouton; c. 1150, Prise d'Or., 1513, Par Mahomet! ne vaus un romoisin [small coin]; c. 1150, Alesc., 377, La soe force ne vaut pas un bouton; ib. 1687, Ne li valut la targe une espanière, | La vielle broigne, le rain d'une fochière; ib. 4918, Ne li pesoit le rein d'un olivier; ib. 16, Mès ne li monte le pris de .ij. besanz; ib. 310, Par mi son elme, mès n'enpire un festu; ib. 6268, Ne crient cop d'arme vailant un panoncel; ib. 6754 li sont com un pant d'auqueton ['sorte d'étoffe, drap']; ib. 6473, Et Apolin, qui ne vaut un festu, | Ne Tervagan la fuelle d'un séu [elder]; c. 1160-74, Rou, 4144, Eureues ont perdu, n'i prist vaillant un peis; c. 1166+, Elie, 2111, Onques nel sorporta vaillant une chenele (= haw); ib. 2088, Ne l'empirist il ia le monte d'une nesple [medlar]; c. 1165+, Mort Garin, 2075, Tot ce ne pris une poire porrie; ib. p. 240, Onques n'i prist la monte d'un espi, &c.

This list, by no means complete, will suffice to represent the fullness of growth of the figurative negation in French in the early literature of that language.

MidE. NEGATIONS AND OFR. PARALLELS.—Dr. J. Hein, in his full and in almost every respect trustworthy work¹, has given a systematic presentation of the occurrences of the negation in MidE. poetry. For not a few of the examples here adduced (marked H.) I am indebted to that admirable work. In seeking psychological grounds as the immediate cause of the growth of negative expressions in MidE., Dr. Hein has, for lack of the comparative method, been led into error. On the other hand, the French influence, which he suspects to have probably had no inconsiderable share in bringing about this growth², is the immediate source of inspiration, the model of its form, and in almost every case the content of its thought.

In the presentation of the English negatives, Hein's article permits me to restrict the number of illustrations.

Hein treats 'pan' under 'Gerätschaften und teile derselben.' This is rather panne, AS. panne < L. patina, of which see numerous examples in S-B. But pan(e) < OFr. pan(e), panne < L. pannus = piece, patch, garment, pane, and so is used in a parallel way with: Ausi le trenche com i. pan de cendal, Auberi, 219, 14. Ausi li trenche com i. pan de burel, ib., 225, 31. Ne li volut la targe une espanière, Alesc., 1687. Ausi li ront com un pant d'auqueton, ib., 6754. The expression may, however, be simply OFr. à pan, thoroughly.

pear: For euerie gadlyng not wurþ a pere, R. B., Hand. S., 769. And al thaire pomp noȝt worth a pere, Pol. P., i. 59 (Minot). It shulde not apeire him a peire, ib., i. 372. Ne schalt pow lese noȝt þe worthy of a pere, Ferumb., 5721 [H.]. I charge it not a pere, P. of Sus., 247.

CHRONOLOGY. The close concord of MidE. with French, even as late as 1400, at which date I cease quotations, is remarkable, and, considering the infinite number of objects which might have been drawn on, if English had pursued an independent course, a sure proof of the influence of OFr. This agreement is still more striking if we view the parallel expressions chronologically. I limit the English lists at (a) 1250, (b) 1300, (c) 1350. By 1350 the native genius had achieved full consciousness of its own individuality, and the language become a conscious artistic medium. The invention of new negative phrases is henceforth a matter of rhetoric.

(a) English examples 1200–1250, and earlier French parallels : fille, Marh.; c. 1150, cf. feuchère, Alesc. hawe, Meid. Marh.; c. 1165, cenele, Cligés, Elie. heryng, Luve R.; 1100–1300, vendoise, Fabliaux; 1277, seche, R. Rose. sloe, Oris.; 12 cent., parnele (= prunelle), Raoul de C. stick of bread, Poem. Mor.; 12 cent., pain, Alexandre; 11–13 cent., pain, in Fabliaux. thread, Laȝ.; c. 1200, Rom. d. Ren.

I omit handhwiil, given by Hein, as having no figurative value.

(b) English examples 1250–1300, with earlier French parallels : 1250–1300, here, O. and N.; 1st third of 12 cent., chevele, Vie de Marg. c. 1280, fir stick, Hav.; c. 1263, bille, Pol. S. c. 1280, straw, Hav.; c. 1150, paile, Cour. L. c. 1280, note, Hav.; c. 1260, castaigne, La Poire. 1275–1300, groat, Kind. Jes.; c. 1150, maille, Cour. L.; c. 1080, denier, Ch. de R. 1250–1300, penny, Relig. S.; c. 1150, angevin, Cour. L. c. 1280, farthinges nok, Hav.; c. 1150, maille, Cour. L. 1250–1300, tort, O. and N.

From Hein's list I except 'foot,' as a measure of space, devoid of figurative value; and 'twinkling' as not used negatively in extant literature before Chaucer.

(c) English examples 1300–1350, with earlier French parallels : c. 1300, flye, R. T.; c. 1150, haneton, Cour. L. 1303, gloué, C. M.; c. 1150, gant, Alesc.; Rou. 1320–30, botoun, G. of W.; c. 1150, bouton, Clef d'A. 1320–30, brustle, R. a. Vern.; before 1236, poil, pelet, de Coinci. c. 1340, clete, Oct. NE.; (no OFr. parallel noted). 1320–30, ferne, A. and M.; c. 1150, fouchère, Alesc. c. 1338, cod, R. of Brunne, Ch.; 12 cent., alie (of garlic), Mort Garin. c. 1300, bene, R. G.; 1225–40, feve, poems of Thibaud; 1160–74, peis, Rou. 1320–1330, ay (egg), Trist.; 1st third of 12 cent., oef, Ch. de Ny. 1303, shell, *C. Form. In addition to the evidence of content of expression and the uniform priority in point of use of the French expressions, there is the evidence of a remarkable agreement in the form of the negative expressions of MidE. and OFr. :—

i. be worth: (a) Al nas wurth a bene, R. G., Ch., 10223; (b) Ne vaillede him nouȝt worþ a botoun, B. of H., 1004. valoir: (a) S'il ne vaut une bele pume, Ip., 8407; (b) Onques nel sorporta vaillant une chenele, Elie, 2111.

ii. mountance: Nouȝht but þe mountance of a corn of whete, Ch., Pr. T., 402. montance: Mais ne li vaut la montance d'un pois, R. de Cambr., 3397.

iii. give, &c.: No ȝaf he ther of nouȝt a ferne, A. and M., 8866. donner, &c.: De touz lur manaces ne dorrai un denier, Pol. Songs, 233 (Ed. I.).

iv. Verbs of estimating, such as set: I sette not a straw by thy dremynges, Ch., N. P. T., 270. priser: Ne prisa mais noz deus à valur d'un gant, St. Aub., 1162.

v. As negative expressions limiting verbs of action: Ne he iwiss moght se a stime, C. M., 19652. Et gute ne vedeit, Rois, p. 48 (L.).

Negations of MHG. The almost parallel conditions of MHG. furnish evidence by analogy. For the fifty or sixty figurative negations of MHG. that Zingerle brings together, exact French equivalents can in almost every single instance be adduced, and of any earlier date than the time at which the German expressions occur. 'Derartige Negationen,' says Zingerle, 'drängten sich erst gegen das Ende des 12. Jahrhunderts vor. Früheren Dichtungen, z. B. dem Alexanderliede [c. 1130], der Kaiserchronik [goes to 1147], Wernher's [† 1266] drei Liedern, u. a. waren sie beinahe noch unbekannt. Allein selbst im 13. Jahrhunderte, in dem diese bildliche Verstärkung ihre grösste Verbreitung erlangte, drang sie nicht überall gleichmässig durch. Am zahlreichsten begegnen sie uns bei den höfischen Dichtern, die dem Beispiele des bewunderten Heinrich von Vedecke, der selbst solche Bilder (blat, bast, ei) liebte, auch hierin gefolgt sind,' u. s., p. 477. French influence was, it is well known, paramount throughout the whole period from the Alexanderlied, and most effective in the court poetry. Zingerle notes the geographical distribution of these negations: 'In Baiern, Franken, Schwaben und Österreich kamen diese bildlichen Verneinungen in ungeahnter Fülle vor, während sie in Mittel- und Niederdeutschland viel spärlicher sich fanden.' Grimm supposed the German influenced the French: 'Mir scheint die ital. und span. Sprache seien in solchen bildlichen Negationen enthaltsamer als die provenz. und französische, woher ich wiederum den näheren Einfluss der deutschen auf letztere anschlagen möchte,' 'Deut. Gramm.', iii. 750. Instead of that being the case, the character and chronology of MHG. negations give the strongest grounds for explaining their origin from the immediate influence of the French.

CONCLUSION. To resume: On the one hand, Gen. Germanic strengthened its negation ne by (Goth) (nf-) wafht, < wihti-*, meaning probably 'thing' (Kluge, Wicht). AS., at its latest period, advanced beyond that only to substitute þing for wiht. It approached a true figurative negation only in the term handhwil used affirmatively: 'It is not for you to know the hour or the moment (handhwil) that my Father hath appointed,' Thorpe, Hom. i. 294, 26; and in using fōl with a verb of motion. On the other hand, Latin possessed these figurative negations in some abundance, which the Romance languages developed to an immense extent¹. Again, the character and chronology of MHG. negations, which show a parallel development with English, point to their French origin, just as the literature in which they first show themselves has in the main Romance substance and colouring. Finally, we have the phenomena of the MidE. negations, (1) that they show themselves slightly in the early years of the thirteenth century, increasing in number during the second half, but attaining great variety and power only at the close of the century and during the first half of the fourteenth century, being therefore in substantial agreement with the movement of Fr. loan-words into English; (2) that, before they begin to occur in MidE., Norman French swarms with figurative negations; (3) that the E. MidE. negations stand in complete agreement of form and, in spite of the temptation of genius or the caprice of individual writers, in most substantial agreement of content with OFr. negations: it is therefore certain, I believe, that our figurative negations are an immediate result of the paramount influence of OFr. on MidE. Doubtless the English language of itself could have developed this form of expression, but—to parallel Dr. Boteler's remark concerning the strawberry—doubtless the English language never did.

III. PHRASAL POWER OF THE PRE- POSITION: AT-PHRASES

ENGLISH has shown in its borrowings a special partiality for nice modifications of verbal notions, especially those in phrasal form. French à-phrases have been peculiarly acceptable to it, witness the many adoptions in the modern language: à bas! à bras ouvert, à cheval, à contre-cœur, à discretion, à fond, à la française, à la mode, à merveille, à outrance, à propos or apropos, à ravir, &c. (see the 'Stanford Dict.'). In the formative period of English, OFr. à, possessed of a vast phrasal power, met in AS. at an ineffective instrument of translation, for the phrasal power of æt was far less extensive, far less subtle. A portion of the phrasal wealth of à was taken over by 'to,' the usual native equivalent of it, whenever à conveyed the idea of motion towards. But, on the other hand, the on-phrases of AS. tended in part to become at-phrases, doubtless because of the slight phrasal value of OFr. sur, and the virtual restriction of its notion to position above. In some cases the OFr. à-phrases seemed to have been passed into MidE. without change:—à l'arme: alarme! alarme quaþ þat Lorde, Lang., P. Pl. (C), xxiii, 92. OFr., Si tost c'om crie à l'arme! Brut de la M., 3075 (God.). à part: Adrow him apart þanne and saide, Sir Ferumb., 636. And drinke piement and ale apart, Pol. P., i. 316. OFr., A donc se tirent chascun a part, fiers et esmeus l'ung contre l'autre, Percef., iii. f. 5 [La C.]. A une part ont le roi trait, Tr., i. 31. à force: þan fielle it a-fforse to ffile hem aȝeyne, Lang., Rich. Red., iv. 21. OFr., L'en a fait à force mener, Tr., 48. À force ne préist, Wace, Brut, 3311. And even à bandon in the early instance cited below (p. 44). But in the main our language undertook to assimilate a great part of the phrasal power of à, an effort furthered, it may be, by the not inconsiderable phrasal use of ON. at. As a result of this effort we see in MidE. a vast extension of its plural use, under the stimulus and after the example of OFr. à-phrases.

AS. Æt. Æt in AS. was confined in use almost entirely to the expression of nearness in local and temporal phrases. Its uses may be classified in detail as follows:—
 i. Nearness in local position.
 (1) a. with common nouns: Æt þære sáe láran, Mark, iv. 1. Ac heora geféran æt ham fuhton, Æ., Lives, xxv. 455. b. with proper nouns: æt Mæretúne, AS. Ch. (Parker), 871. Idiomatically with dat. pl.: ‘ðe mon hæt æt Hæðum’, Oros., i. § 19. Cf. ‘Atterbury’ in MidE. (2) At an occurrence or event, present or participating: Bæd hine blfðne · æt þære bér-pege, Beo., 618. (3) Indicating the part of an object affected: Hire æt heortan læg æppel unsælga, Cæd., Gen., 636 (NED). (4) Indicating the relation of an attribute to the part affected: Wæs seo tréow lufu hát æt heortan, Chr., 539 (B-T). (5) Indicating the part or point at which entrance or exit is effected: þa tó duru éodon drihtlice cempa ond æt óðrum durum Ordlað ond Guðláf, Bat. of Finnsb., 14. (6) Attainment of position, with verbs of motion: a. to,—Ge ne comon æt me, Matt. xxv. 43. b. as far as,—And hine besencton on þa syrenan éa æt his cneowa, B. Hom., p. 43. (7) Motion directed towards, often with hostile intent: Ne mihton hí áwiht æt me áfre gewyrcean, Ps. (Th.) cxxviii. 1 (B-T). Deaðes wylm hrán æt heortan, Beo., 2271. (8) The source from which anything comes, at which we seek it. Hence especially used with verbs of asking and depriving: Ic gebád grynná æt Grendle, Beo., 931. And þa bysena þe hie æt his dædum gesawon, B. Hom., p. 119. Hwæt axast ðu æt us, Æ., Lives, xxv. 112. (9) Hence with ‘gelang’ to indicate dependence: Æt þam wæs gelang eall heora foda, Æ., Lives, xxiii. 218. (10) The idea of nearness is conjoined with that of source: þæt deofolseoce æt his reliquium wæron gelacnod, Bede, 14, 26. Wearð ácweald æt his witena handum, Æ., Hom. Ass. St. John. (11) The idea of source passes to that of agency (of persons): Wæron gemartyrode æt þam manfullan nero, Æ., Lives, xxix. 116. (12) The idea of nearness, approach, passes to that of application: þær hi æt lare wæron, Æ., Lives, xxix. 10. (13) Hence the destination, object: Neb bið hyre æt nytte, Rā., 12, 5. (14) The idea of nearness involves effect on (= ‘with respect to’): Ponne hwæþere æt þære halgan Elizabet seo hire gebyrd naht gemunan, B. Hom., 163.—
 ii. Temporal relations. (15) Nearness indicated by words marking periods of times; such as, æt þa endlystan tíd þæs dæges, B. Hom., p. 93; æt þæm ytmostan dæge, ib., p. 51; æt sumum cyrre [at certain season], Æ., Lives, xxiii. 16; æt ásen, B. Hom., p. 91. (16) By words indicating a regularly recurring action or state, hence used as time-marks: æt sunnan setlgange, B. Hom., p. 93; ælce niht æt uhtsange, B. R., 39, 16. (17) By words indicating action or state: Fylston éow æt nýdpearfe, Deut., xxxii. 28. (18) Or indicating a stage in the progress of an action or state: þu us æt endestæfe mycel here-reaf gehéte, B. Hom., p. 85; æt frumsceaste, at the beginning; æt ende, at end. (19) Note here the use of certain superlatives: And nicánor æt fruman feoll þær ofslagen, Æ., Lives, xxv. 632. And het ða æt nextan þa hæðenan cwelleras . . . ingan, ib., xxiv. 61. Æt ærestan, Laws of K. Alf., pol. i. And nū æt siðestan sylfes feore | béagas gebohte, Beo., 3014. (20) Here belongs a superlative of extent [cf. 6 b]: Æt læstan l. scyþa, AS. Ch., 1049.

Mr. Skeat, 'Etymol. Dict.', p. 453, regards this phrase as a translation of OFr. à point devis, in which devis is p.part., devised, imagined. But OFr. deviser means to determine (al jor devis, on the day set), plan, and not imagine. Unfortunately, too, I find no instance of the occurrence of à point devis, though it probably was used—cf., Lors ont la chose tout à point devisée, Enf. Og., 177. It is evident that the original sense is exactly, perfectly; cf. 'at point' and 'at device' < à devis, exactly,—Nof cenz e dosze ans à devise, Ch. d. N., 6858. Si vus dirai tot a devise, Troie, 307.

Soit pour la guerre à son deseure | Et a son dessous au tournoy, Machault, p. 111.

That the French idiom is taken from the wheel of fortune seems evident from the lines: Icil sunt al desos torné | Qui el desus orent esté, Brut, 4768. But cf. Lat. supra, subter.

Anglo-Saxon expressed a somewhat similar idea by búfan and beniðan—And þu bist æfre búfan and ná beniðan, Gr., Deut., xxviii. 13. Plainly an imitation of the Lat. ‘semper supra et non subter.’

at a trice: Pluckid downe dere all at a tryse, Ipom., ii. 392. Mr. Skeat does not know this phrase (see his 'Etym. Dict.', 'trice'). He derives trice from Span. triz, noise made by the breaking of glass, short space of time, instant; venir en un triz, to come in an instant. The presence of the word in MidE. makes it necessary to connect 'tryse,' Ipom., ii. 392, with MidE. trisen, to haul, pull; see Ch., C. T. B., 3715, 'Out of his sete i wol him trise.' MidE. 'at a tryse' is therefore a parallel to 'à un trait,' Alesc., 3929.

This use of at with verbs of playing is also the construction in ON. AS. plegan was used transitively or absolutely. With an object the construction with the accusative of the object was usual: plegan plegiaþ, plægiendra timpanum, &c. (B-T).

(a) Desi qu'a xv jorz al meins, Troie, 25541. Il a jà bien cinc ans, au mains, R. Rose, 47. Au mains une, ib., 1640.

Jusqu'a quinzaine a tot le mains, Chev. au L., 3076. (B) De la bele dame veoir | Au moins, Chev. au L., 1539. Ceci au meins bien cuidions, Boron, Graal, 3535; Wace, Brut, 1200.

In AS. æt læstan, without the article, was used in limiting numerals, Ch., 1049; but in the limitation of the sense of verbs huru = at least: Forði me sceolan habban huru eadmodnysse, Æ. Lives, xii. 283.

The use of the article, which is uniformly employed in MidE., and the extension of the use of 'at the least' for verbal modifications, are best explained by the constant influence of OFr. au moins.

(b) at the best: Treuli twenti pou sand a-tired atte best, Wm. of P., 1949. And dronken euer strong ale atte best, Ch., Rev. T., 227. And wel we weren esed atte beste, Ch., Prol. C. T., 29.

Ele fut corunee al plus bel e al mielz, Prl. de Ch., 6. Furent arbres au plus bel del munt, Jos., 1967. Et fai al mius que tu saras, Wace, Brut, 6754. Al mielz qu'il sot et au plus dreit, Troie, 1841. Je la salu au plus bel | Que jou poi raisnier, R. u. P., iii. 26, 13.

AS. used 'best' as super. adv., but I do not find æt bestan*. þu scalt libben alre best, O. E. Hom., i. p. 7.

MidE., as far as my notes show, does not adopt equivalents for OFr. al plus bel, Ch. d. N., ii. 569 (but cf. 'at the best'); al plus tost, Wace, Rou, ii. 1942; Ch. d. N., ii. 15148; au long, Year-Bk. Ed. I., i. p. 26, or à long, but cf. at schort, Lanc., 135; au plus dreit, Troie, 1841, &c.; au plus, A. and N., 18, 28 (AS., be ðam mæstan); au pis, A. N. C., iii. 150.

(c) at first, at the first: Him behoveþ ate verste | Þet he habbe prudence, Ayenb., p. 127. A gret fiss at þe ferste | Mi net he makede berste, Horn, 661 (669 ed. Wissmann, Quel. u. Forsch., 45). Rimmild sede at þe ferste: | herte, nu þu berste, Horn, 1191 (Wissm., 1213). At the furste up he drough, Alis., 2636.

Tel[s] quida altre abatre ki al premier chai, Wace, Rou, ii. 788. Au premier quant de li parlai, Bl. et Jeh., 4708. Qui au premier fu vostre dame, ib., 4920.

The AS. æt fruman, æt ærestan, on forman (Bl. Hom., 127, 20), were carried into MidE.: Ac ich ȝou telle þo at arst, A. and M., 2333. For now at erste shul ye here, Ch., H. of F., 512. Louerd spareð a uormest þe ȝunge, A. R., 220. On alre erest hwon ȝe . . . , ib., 64.

The simple superlative adv. was likewise used, arst, erst.

The preference manifested for 'at the first,' using at rather than on, and adding the article, shows the steady influence of the French expression with al, au.

at the last: And at the last forgat thai noght, Minot, in Pol. P., i. 77. Rest at þe laste, Cl., 446; Ch., Prol. C. T., 707; R. of R., 193; Sir Per., 2259; R. R. H., Pr. of C., 86; Libeaus Des., 1506.

Garin li dus tot au derrain vint, Mort Garin, 3805. Mes al d[e]rain se tent a cest, Ip., 1247; Tr., 2, ii. 6; Wace, Rou, ii. 356. Pesa al darrennier k'il tant fu esparni, St. Aub., 1528; Troie, 6078. Or li proi qu'el ne m'esconde | Au darrenier d'un petit don, La Poire, 2988. Al dreyn torna la perte a Yervand, Fitz W., p. 23; Gaimar, 189 (Ep. L. D.). À darrien, Boron, Graal, 3830.

AS. æt sfoestan is like æt ærestan in lacking the article. It does not appear in MidE., which has partly availed itself of 'on ende' to express the notion. On ende,—peonne is þe muchele joie, A. R., 218. In finem, on ende, ib., 146. I dredre on ende quat schulde byfalle, Pearl, 16, 6. = Lat. and Fr. in finem, en fin. AS. on lengðe,—On lengðe mid him he begeat ealle þa eastlond, Oros., 144, 1—scarcely appears in MidE. There is a very rare case, On lenche als him likes, Pierre de L., p. 236. The AS. 'latest' = at the latest, Wulfst., 208, 5 (B-T), could not affect 'æt sfoestan'. On the other hand, ON. at lesti no doubt aided in the establishment of the phrase. At (the) last could arise from (a) ON. at lesti, (b) by analogy with æt ærestan, under the influence of al derein; in either case the presence of the article points to OFr. influence. The earliest occurrence in Laȝ, 'at þan laste,' 3765, is in harmony with this view.

The loss of AS. æt nehstan, recently, lately, finally, at last, Oros., 30, 12, seems due to the absence of a supporting phrase in OFr.

CHRONOLOGY. The earliest evidence of the influence of OFr. à in MidE. phrasal use is found in the first half of the thirteenth century, when Ia, at one's might, appears in Orm., II, at will in V. and V., III b, at once, and VII a, at the least, in A.R. The use of abaundune in O.E.H., c. 1225, is significant of the colloquial familiarity with à-phrases in EMidE. The article is also added to 'at last' as a phrase of time in Laȝ. The second half of the century extends the at-phrases but slightly. I, at will, is found in Laȝ. (2nd text) replacing the AS. on of the first text; III b, at one, VII c, at the first, appear in Horn; at few words in B. and S. The flourishing time of at-phrases is the first half of the fourteenth century: I b, at point, Wm. of P.; III, at aise, A. and M., at the full, C. M.; III a, at defence, Bev. of H.; III b, at debate, Pr. of C.; IV, at guess, Hand. S.; V a, at o dent, A. and M.; V b, play at table, R. G.; VI, (set) at nought, Wm. of P.; VII, at all, ib.; VII a, β, superlatives (quant.) with the, at the leste, Pr. of C.; VII b, (qual.) at the best, Wm. of P. The last half of the fourteenth century extends this phrasal growth somewhat further: V b, at the spurs, Morte Arthur; V c, at eye, Ch. But the chief extensions for MidE. had been established. Authors like Robert of Gloucester, Robert of Brunne, Richard Rolle of Hampole, Dan Michel, the writers of the versions A. and M. and Wm. of P., all having Fr. affiliations, are the chief exponents of the new phraseology.

CONCLUSION. The history of AT in ME. shows very many remarkable phenomena. An expression like be þínre mæðe became at thy measure; on ðínum gewealde, at thy command; on feounge, at discord; on emtan, at leisure; hwylcumhwega wordum, at few words; tellað . . for náht, set at no value; a simple word such as eallunga, entirely, may be rendered by a phrase, at all; the simple superlative adverbs mæst, læst, &c., are preferably rendered by phrases, at the most, at the least, at the best, &c.; new phrases are coined, at bay, at point, at my knowing, at abandon, &c.—in short, AT undergoes in MidE. a great development of meaning, encroaching on the sphere of other prepositions and entering into phrases previously unknown in the language. These changes are paralleled with the utmost exactitude by the use of à in corresponding syntactical phrases in OFr. They occur for the first time chiefly in works having French originals. Hence it must be concluded that this development of meaning of AT and the extension of its phrasal power are the direct result of French influence upon the native language.

IV. NOMINAL COMPOUNDS AND PHRASES

THE juxtaposition of MidE. and OFr. made some modification of the Teutonic noun-compounds inevitable; for the facility of AS. in creating compound nouns was restricted to so-called 'flat' and flexional syntax; while the facility of OFr. was essentially in phrasal syntax. In some cases OFr. influence modified the flat compounds of English without perceptible need in point of expression, as in the case of head- resp. master-, chief-; in some instances new phrasal nouns appear, at times supplanting the AS. equivalents, at times expressive of new notions; in others, as in the construction with 'manner of,' the mind's view of the phrase changed, and the OFr. construction won a distinct victory over the native idiom.

I. MASTER-, CHIEF-, IN COMPOUNDS.

In AS., expressions corresponding to MidE. 'mayster-wryth,' A. E. L., Kindh. J., 635, 'chef church,' Wm. of P., 1955, involved the use of héafod, head: Ow twam héafod-burgum, AE., Lives, ii. 320. Seo burh Asor wæs . . . manegra burga héafod [= principatum tenebat], Gr., Jos., xi. 10. þa héafod-menn, AE., Lives, xiii. 139. héafod-wyrhta, héafod-mynster, héafod-stede, héafod-gylt, deadly sin; héafod-leahter, a capital offence.

Compounds with heaved < héafod continue through MidE. þe seouen heaved sunnen, A. R., 194. Alle heued-sennes, V. and V., 81, 21; 3, 29; 67, 34. Nu beoð viii heafod mihtan, O. E. H., p. 103.

But MidE. early shows compounds with (1) master and (2) chief, immediately due to the influence of OFr. maistre and chief in equivalent expressions.

master: Wimmen welten weres mester = master-men, fiends (M), G. and Ex., 532. Meister burg, ib., 3381; meister prest, ib., 3386. þe mayster-wryth, A. E. L., Kind. J., 635. þe maister jailere, C. M., 4434. þe maister chefe iailer, ib. (MS. 1340), 4434. The maister budel, Pol. Songs, 151. A mayster þef, R. R. H., Lam., 330. A maister heretyk, A. E. L., Ambr. 299. ȝe Meires and ȝe Maister Iuges, P. Pl. (A.), viii. 171. The maystre strete, Ch., L. G. W., Ariad., 80. The maistre temple, L. G. W., Dido, 91. Maistre toune of al Colcos, Ysyph., 224. A wise maister carpenter, Wic., i Cor., iii. 10.

Mestre cuisinier, Alesc., 3845. Li maistre cleric, Rou, 877. Maistre gardeins, ib., 3238. Mestre confesseur, A. N. Ch., iii. 177. Le maistre tor roial, G. de P., 4652. Son maistre cor, Alesc., 7058. Son maistre conseillier, Berte, 3174. Mestre dais, Tr., ii. 101; En., 839. Ce est la maistre siez d'enfer, ib., 2701. Mestre limonier, Char. de N., 1264. Mestre bacheler, ib., 1223. Maistre roche, Aymon, 133. Mestre donjon, ib., 121. Maistre chambre, ib., 111. Maistres vénères, ib., 97. As maistres porz, Ch. de R., 2939.

chief: Oure chefe kyng, R. B., Ch., 15. þe maister chefe iailer, C. M. (MS. 1340), 4434. þe chef chyrche, R. G., Ch., 4758. þe chief Cite, E. E. Ps., 49. þe chef cherch, Wm. of P., 1955. Chife goddes and qwene, Ch., Fr. T., 1046. Cheefe-pasture, Pol. P., i. 321. Chefe lorde, Sir Per., 2135. My chefe herte, Sir Egl., 305.

The earliest instance of OF. chief, in this use, cited by Littré is : Le chief seignor dou reiaume Jerusalem, Ass. de J., 1215 (date 1250, G. Paris). Chef bailifs, Tr. d'Ec., c. 7 (God. ii. 121). Chef seygnur, Pierre de L., p. 182. Chef justiser, id., p. 258. Chef justize, Livere de Reis, p. 252. Qe estoit fait chief gardein du roy, Fr. Ch. Lond., p. 62.

It is especially noteworthy that MidE. 'master' in these expressions is imitated from OFr.; and that when in OFr., at a time later by a century than the use of maistre, chief is used, MidE., at a correspondingly long time after the use of master, turns to employ chief. The history of this expression is somewhat parallel to that of cors, referred to in the Introduction.

i. MidE. shows a remarkable growth of phrasal nouns of the type of man of arms, man of law, for which AS. employed either the simple noun, e. g. cempa, or the flat compound, e. g. lahman. ii. It exhibits, too, a partiality for the genitive of quality, especially in certain conventional terms favoured in OFr. poetry. The latter construction was not new to English, as AS. frequently used it, especially when accompanied by an adjective; e. g. mæsse-preost mæres lifes, Æ., Lives, iv. 229. The first type is essentially Romance by origin.

man of arms, &c. Men of armes, R. B., Ch., 1025; ib., 1541. Godmen of armes, Wm. of P., 1069. Kniȝt of armes, ib., 1198. Harroldys of armes, Torr., 2365. Man of werre, Ip., 3869. Men at horse, Maund., xxii. 245 (NED).

Hommes d'armes, Berry, Rec. de N., 357, 370 bis. Chevaliers d'armes, Cligés, 2687. Sergaunts d'armes, Fr. Ch. Lond., p. 83. Bone genz des armes, Pierre de L., i. p. 218, B. Consauls d'armes, Machault, p. 108. Gens d'armes, Berry, Rec. de N., 306 et pass. Gens de guerre, ib., 268 et pass.; Cl. d'Am., 2000. Airaulx d'armes, J. d'Auton, Ch. (God.). Archiers à cheval, Berry, Rec. de N., 347, 371. Serjanz e à escuz e à arcs, Quatre Liv. des R., iii. 27. Un grand sire as armes, Pierre de L., i. 196. Gens as armes, id., i. 218.

merchant of wool, &c.—a favourite phrasal construction for nouns of trades and professions: Marchantes of wolle, P. Pl. Crede, 289. Men of laghe, Pr. of C., 5942; Ch. Mel., p. 164. Sergeant of lawe, Prol. C. T., 309. Doctour of phisik, ib., 411. Man of religion, Wm. de S., 65; St. Alex. (v.) 23; E. E. Wills, 3, 12. Renkez of religion, Cl., 7. Men of ordre, A. E. L., St. Aug., 1043; St. Alex. (Laud, 622), 86, &c. Man of holichirche, R. G., Ch., 9659.

Merchant de chevax, de vin, ouvrière de soie, tailleur de robes, &c., Taille de Paris, anno 1313. Marchéanz de dras, Fab., ii. 126. Mestres de theologye, Pierre de L., ii. 346. Gent de religiun, Rou, 783; Fab., ii. 172; Livere de Reis, p. 58. Dames de religion, Machault, p. 147. Gent d'ordre, Ruteb., 42 (L.). Gens d'eglise, Berry, Rec. de N., 297, 358.

man of price, &c. An excellent instance of the transference of set phrases from OFr. to MIdE. is afforded by the expressions made with price in a relation of genitive of quality: No no gentil man of priis, A. and M., 2831. His yonge men of prys, Gam., 803. In Troye was a Duc of prys, R. B., Ch., 459. Pe twelue dosze-peres of pris, ib., 1601. & Kniȝtes of pris, A. and M., 6062. A castel . . . of pris, R. B., Ch., 1612. Gyftes of pris, ib., 3748. Hors of priis, A. and M., 6811.

Bons serjens de priz, Mort Garin, p. 4. Li bon vasal de prise, Aymon, p. 11. Li barons de pris, Cligés, 4630. c. homes de pris, Alesc., 8019. Chevaus de pris, Cligés, 416.

point of death. This expression exemplifies the supplanting of the native idiom by the borrowed phrase: Be noght fulfilled at þe dedes poynt, R. R. H., Pr. of C., 3303. Þou bytawte in to þi faderys handys at þe poynt of þi deth þi gloryouse gost, R. R. H., Med. de P. D., 338. At point of dede was hir stat, A. and M., 8458. In poynt of dethe we both hathe ben, Ip., 7032.

E quant vent al point de la mort, Best. Rich., 3835. Naufrez au poynt de mort, Fitz War., p. 70. Qu'il vient al destreit, | Al point de morir, Reimp., § 68.

The AS. expressions of the notion were: Æt his daga ende, Bl. Hom., p. 225; ealdres at ende, Beo., 2791; and orwena lisë læg æt forð-siðe, Æ., Lives, iii. 301.

brother germain, brother-in-law, &c. It is not remarkable, when MidE. adopted OFr. terms for family relationships like uncle, aunt, cousin, that it should also owe expressions of the type of cousin germain and brother-in-law to the same source. Brother germayn of uader and of moder, Ayen., 146. No bretheren, ne cosins germayns, Ch., Mel., 168. He is mi germain cosyn, G. of W., A., 912 (NED).

Qui estoit ses freres germains, Cligés, 2539. Sa cuer germainne, Chev. au L., 3909; serors germainnes, R. u. P., i. 5, 2. .ii. cousins germains, Fab., ii. 54. Germains cousins, Alexan. (Fuerres), 645.

He was Daries brother in lawe, Alis., 4399. And son-in-law wes to the king, Bruce, xvii. 219. Agains Pompeius, fader thin in lawe, Ch., Monkes T., 690.

The AS. expressions for brother-in-law, &c., were āsum, swegr, snoru. The new forms are certainly Romance. In OFr. en loi de mariage was a set formula in the expression of such relationships: Père en loi de mariage = beau-père (La C. 'loi,' also God., ib.). Me pren par loy de mariage, Metam. Ov. (Bartsch), 643, 29. Vos iestes tuit mi fil et mes filles en loi, Jos. of Ar., 1380. Poures jeunes hommes, | Freres en lay à cause de leurs femmes, Reg. 130 Chartoph. reg., ch. 127 (Du Cange). The NED notes as the source the legal Lat. frater in lege, citing, however, no example earlier than 1425, while the MidE. expression is found in 1300.

III. TAUTOLOGICAL PHRASES.

MidE., in addition to tautological groups carried over from AS., shows fresh groups transferred from OFr. These are: verbal groups, like grant and give, A. E. L., St. Aug., 1357; adverbial, like fair and well; adjectival, like safe and sound; or nominal, like those adduced below. In some cases an English equivalent word replaces a French word in one member of the phrase, and the whole takes on a semblance of bilingualism, for which the history of the phrase in question affords no justification.

cause and matter: That men mowe haue cause and matiere to prayse you, Ch., Mel., p. 196.

Ne truisse cause ne reson, Cl. d'Am., 2923.

custom and use (haunt): Als þe custom þan was and þe usage, R. R. H., Pr. of C., 4054. His custume & his haunt, R. B., Ch., 6648.

Si comme il est costume et us, Wace, Brut, 6912; id., 3243. Si com or est us et costume, Cligés, 4531. Si come il est coustume et us, Fab., i. 112. Par le coustume et par l'usage, G. de P., 8907.

right and reason: For as by right and resoun, ther may no man take vengeaunce, Ch., Mel., 169.

Mout lor fet bien reison et droit, Cligés, 534; Ch. d. N., ii. 23560; Wace, Rou, ii. 2749. Raison et droiture, Fab., i. 1. Dreiz est e raisun, Mar. Leg., 46/155; Cour. L., 1897; Troie, 24404.

IV. CYN AND MANNER OF¹.

The expression of the notion 'what kind of' was usually made in A.S. by means of cyn in the genitive: Feower cynna gefeoht, Æ. Lives, xxv. 705. Ælces cynnes treow = L. omne lignum, Gen., ii. 9. Cf. also: gehwylces hádes men, men of all ranks, Bl. Hom., p. 47. Þa nistenu of eallum cinne, Gen., vii. 8.

This native idiom passed into MidE.: sumes kennes (lean), V. and V., 11, 32. Monie kunnes remedies, A. R., 120. Two cunne ancren, ib., 128. Ones Kunnes treow, ib., 150. Alles cunnes pinen, Jul., 18. Nanes cunnes blisse, ib., 21. Ilc kinnes beste, G. and Ex., 220. Opres kennes teares, V. and V., 147, 8. Alle ðes kennes eueles, ib., 103, 2. Noskinnes labour, Ch., H. of F., 1794. Us forto were fra alkins ill, St. Holy Rood, 60.

In examples like the last cited we see already alles cynnes losing caste as a noun and passing into an indeclinable adjective. This tendency was strengthened by the form cynne, originally the genitive pl. cynna; hence: Whatkyn fruyt, Pr. of C., 923. Alkyn thyng, ib., 3248. Nankyn chance, Bruce, ii. 168. This kyn vis, ib., iv. 743. Fele-kyn hues, Cl., 1483. Even Whatkyns a Godd, Sir Perc., 242. On pis kin wise, Finding of the Cross, 33.

The OFr. expression by means of manière, espèce, emphasized the class rather than the content of the notion: Tote manere de pecche, Best. Rich., 1516. Une manere est de serpent, ib., 1634. Toutes manières d'autres vivres, Tr., i. 32. Autre meniere d'angin, Jos. of A., 862. Mainte maniere | E de virgenes et d'inocens, Mouskes, Hist. de Fr., p. 296. iii manieres de franchise, Lorenz, p. 24. Vint e treis manieres de herbes, Adgar, 31, 86. Tute manière de musches (= omne genus muscarum), Ps. lxxvii. 45. Also, but less frequently: Joiaus de maintes manières, Fab., ii. 125. Roses de diverses guises, Cl. d'A., 2147.

MidE. early imitated the OFr.: Crabbe is an manere of fisse, O.E.H., 51. How fele maners . . . of fleande brides, Quest. M., p. 286. þe maner of crucyfyng, Med. Pass. Lord, 628. Al maner of trespass, Med. Sov. Lady, 1104. Another manere of drynk, Pr. of C., 6750. Sere maners of gys, ib., 1532. Through the analogical influence of the singular constructions, aided by the native uninfllected collectives, we have: Seven manere of blysses, Pr. of C., 8168. Kind stands at times as the native equivalent of manere: Vnder what kynde of tre, Ps. of S., 336. Al kynde of fissches, Wic., Matt. xiii. 48. Even what-kyn is influenced: Breve me, bryght, quat-kyn of treys, Pearl, 63, 11.

Manner assumed at times the late native (uninflected) construction of cyn, hence: Of each maner evil, Holy Rode (Ashm.), 67. Some maner comfort, Ch., Mill. T., 495. Such maner doctrine, Pr. T., 47. All maner fusoun, Libeaus Des., 112. On the other hand, the native construction seems to have reacted on late AngN.: Al rays est acordez de totes maners ennuys, Pierre de L., i. 492; also Fr. Ch. de L. Latin influence as well was at work, the appositive, instead of the partitive genitive construction with pars, genus, &c., being common in non-classical Latin (Draeger, Hist. Syntax, i. 3).

AS. place-names, in addition to the simple form, such as Brytene, Lundene, Temese, were frequently composite. i. A genitive of possession entered: Edmundesburh. Norðmanna land, Oros., 18, 24. West Seaxna rice, A.S. Ch., i. Angelcynnes lond, ib., 96. Baldewines land [Flanders], ib., 305. Andredes ceaster, ib., 24. Brunnanburh, ib., 200. Ascanmynster, ib., 86. Ægelesford, ib., 279. Æsces dún, ib., 139. In rare cases, under immediate Latin usage, the genitive replaced what logically was an appositive relation: Alex- andrian byrig, A.E., Lives, ii. 181. II. The appositive relation of name and common noun was the common and native idiom: Romeburh, Oros., 28, 25. Eoforwicceastre, A.S. Ch., 48. Þæt land Arabia, Oros., 10, 35. Seo éa Danai, ib., 8, 16. Brytene igland, A.S. Ch., 3. On þam dene Mambre, Gen., 18, 1. Þa muntas Caucasus, Oros., 130, 16. Aethiopica westenne, ib., 12, 26 [= Aethiopica deserta]. III. The common noun may be extended by the use of the article or periphrasis: Nilus seo éa, Oros., 12, 19. Þam wætere seo éa hatte Tamese, A.S. Ch., 5. On Antiochia, ib., 9 = On Antiochia ðære ceastre, ib., 8 = on Antiochia ceastre, ib., 9. IV. The Norse construction with æt is found: To þam porte þe mon hæt æt Hæfum, Oros., 19, 23.

The MidE. period offers abundant instances of the native constructions: To lond mesopotanie fer, G. and Ex., 1360. Fro ðe riche flod eufrate, ib., 1256. To ðare haljan ceastre constantinopolim, Holy Rood, 34, 28. Iordanen þære æ, ib., 18, 26. Wyrolhram pe cite, R. B., Ch., 9616. Þe Louh Lumyne (= Lomond), ib., 10195. Þe hil Teynewyk, ib., 10165. Two watres, Marne & Seyne, ib., 10832. Inne Winchæstre tun, Laȝ., (b) 400.

Early in MidE. there appears, however, a new construction destined to win supremacy over, though not to oust, the native 'flat' appositives: Igland of Orcanie, A.S. Ch., p. 11 (MS. Cott. Domit., A. viii, dated (Thorpe) c. 1150; earlier MSS. Orcadus þa éalond, Orcadius pa éaland). Ðe desert of refachim, G. and Ex., 3352. Out of þe montayn of Synay, ib., 224. Þe hul of Calvary, Holy Rode (Ashm.), 345. In þe londe of Asye, St. Marg., 18. The Cite of Damace, Bev. of Ham., x. 1042. The rayalme of Fraunce, ib., 2602. Þe water of Teyne, R. B., Ch., 10161. Ilde of Albyon, ib., 1745. The cape of Fynestere, Ch., Prol., 408. The toun of Athenes, K. T., 115. The mount of Setheron, ib., 1078.

It is worth notice that the first instance of the occurrence of this new construction bears with it a trace of its origin. The form Orcanie in the A.S. Ch. is the Romance form as against the semi-Lat. Orcadus or the native Orcaneg. The construction is, of course, Romance. Instances of it are not unknown to Latin: Urbem Patavi, Virgil, A.E., i. 247. Asturæ flumen, Livy, viii. 13, &c. (Draeger, 'Hist. Syntax der latein. Sprache,' i. p. 466, § 202 (2nd ed.).) In Med. Latin this took the form villam de Bertiniaca, which became the general Romance construction (Stolz-Schmalz, 'Latein. Grammatik,' 417, § 65). Terre de France, mult estes dulz païs, Ch. de R., 1861. La terre d'Engleterre, Ch. d. N., ii. 27940. Le païs de Vermendeis, ib., ii. 18261. La duchée de Normandie, ib., ii. 11311. Fieu de Normendie, ib., ii. 28101. Le reaume de France, ib., ii. 24473. L'île d'Avalon, Wace, Brut, 9516. La cité de Rome, Ch. d. N., i. 1300. La rivere de Somme, ib., ii. 12272. Al fluie de Ette, ib., ii. 9321. L'eue de Gironde, ib., ii. 4814. La cyte de Loundres, Troie, 23249. Le flum de Humere, Livere de Reis, p. 44.

The same history holds with the appositives of month. The native names of the month gave place in AS. to Latin names, used either alone : Ianuarius, Menol. (Fox), 19, Martius, ib., 73, Maius, ib., 155 ; or in apposition with monað : se sol-monað . . . Februarius, ib., 31 ff. ; monað . . . Iunius, ib., 210 ff. ; Aprelis monað, ib., 112 ; Blotmonað . . . Nouembris, ib., 387 f. The genitive is rare, if indeed this be not a variant analogical nom. : monað to tune Decembris, ib., 436 f. The new MidE. usage, following the introduction of the OFr. names, is : the monthe of Aueril, R. G., Ch., 506 ; the monþe of feuerer, ib., 8238 ; þe monþ of June, Libeaus Des., 1303.

This imitates OFr. : Le mois de Mars, Berry, Rec. de N., 239. Le meis d'Avril, Troie, 23249. El meis de Averil, Gaimar, 3247. Le mays de August, Pierre de L., i. p. 26, &c.

CHRONOLOGY. The influx of noun phrases is first noted in the appositive construction with or, which appears as early as the middle of the twelfth century; about a century later master-frequently replaces head- in compound nouns. The real flood of new phrasal nouns begins with the fourteenth century. From 1300 to 1350 we note the introduction of chief- for master-, month of, manner of, man of arms, man of law, man of price, brother-germain, brother-in-law, point of death, and the tautologies custom and use, hue and cry, lord and sire, los and price. The second half of the century extends these groups by man at arms, merchant of wool, and additional tautologies.

CONCLUSION. The establishment of Romance influence in nominal phrases as exemplified above seems warranted by the indisputable influence of master-, chief-, on the native habit of compounding with héafod, and by the direct translation of frère en loi, supplanting AS. ȝðum. The expression of the appositive relation by or is essentially a Romance, not a Teutonic construction. It is interesting to see, in the case of 'manner of,' what is abundantly illustrated elsewhere, that the foreign word tends to bring into the language that adopts it its own construction. The instances of conventional tautologies are part of those stylistic imitations of OFr. characterizing nearly all the fourteenth-century literature of MidE. The full history of these phrases would disprove what indeed the phrases here adduced suggest, that MidE. tautologies are a matter of style or of habit, not a conscious adjustment of language to the needs of speech in a bi-lingual people. (See Earle, Philology, pp. 84 ff., 5th ed., contra.)

GENERAL CONCLUSIONS.

It has been shown that OFr. exercised an extensive and powerful influence on the development of the meaning and phrasal uses of important MidE. verbs, at times to the detriment of the native idiom; that the same influence told in a characteristic feature of MidE. expression and style, the figurative negative, which, virtually unknown to AS., found its inspiration, form, and content in OFr.; that in subtle syntactical relations, as in the use of prepositions in adjectival and adverbial phrases, there was a marked growth of new constructions, accompanied by a modification or giving up of old constructions, all under the influence of OFr. syntax; that existing nominal compounds in MidE. were affected, formations on new types entered, conventional nominal phrases were borrowed or imitated, tautological phrases were naturalised, appositive relationship expressed by or in place-names, &c.—all after the example of OFr. usage. We must therefore conclude:—

i. That a great factor in the changes which distinguish MidE. from AS., and which persist as characteristics of Standard English in Chaucer—changes that affect the phraseology, idiom, syntax, style—is found to be the influence of OFr.

The attitude of modern scholarship may be represented by the sentence already quoted from Professor Körting: ‘Nur im Wortschatz ist das Englische halbfranzösisirt, im Uebrigen ist es germanisch geblieben, und wo es dennoch dem Französischen ähnlich geworden zu sein scheint . . . ist dies nicht die Folge einer Angleichung an das Französische, sondern erklärt sich durchaus befriedigend aus den der Sprache von jeher eigenen Entwickelungsneigungen.’ This, too, was the opinion of Scheibner: ‘Von einem directen Einflusse des Französischen auf das Englische wollen die meisten Philologen nichts wissen; nur Keane [‘Handbk. of the English Language,’ London, 1875] nimmt an, dass die Tendenz des Englischen, die Flexionsendungen abzuwerfen, durch die Berührungen mit der französischen Sprache theilweise bestimmt oder beeinflusst worden ist!’ With these we must class, perhaps, Kellner, though his position is somewhat vaguely defined: 'The influence of French on Syntax Proper has been overrated. English syntax, in the main, is still Germanic, just as English sounds, inflexions, and word-formation are¹'. This opinion we consider no longer tenable. Einenkel represents a sane recovery from the extreme negative view, which was itself a reaction from the rash generalisations of Thommerel. 'Der Einfluss des Afrz. auf das Me. zeigt sich mittelbar in einer Beschleunigung des Triebes zur Analyse, unmittelbar in der Nachbildung zahlreicher, oft idiomatisch-romanesischer Ausdrucksweisen²'.

2. From the chronology of the changes it is made manifest that there is a law in the time of their appearance. These modifications, due to OFr. influence, show an almost imperceptible trace in the twelfth century, appear to a slight extent in the early years of the thirteenth century, gain slight ground during that century, but only in the first half of the fourteenth century do they manifest themselves in anything like the strength and fullness that characterize Standard English as against Early MidE. In this respect Einenkel's view is corroborated: 'Das 14. Jahrh. ist der Angelpunkt in der Entwicklung der engl. Syntax³'. Hence:—

3. These changes are in essential respects in effective strength before the time of Chaucer and Wycliffe, who must be regarded as masters and not creators of their language. In this respect Morsbach's view, gained by an examination of the phonology and inflection of London documents, is upheld: 'Sie (die neueng. Schriftspr.) ist weder von Wyclif noch von Chaucer geschaffen⁴'.

4. These changes, as respects chronology, are parallel with the growth of the French elements in the vocabulary of MidE., as stated by Morris, Sturmfels, and others. 'Die Ausbeute aus den me. Denkmälern des 12. und der ersten Hälfte des 13. Jh. fällt spärlich aus . . . Eine grösitere Aufname afr. Wörter fand erst in der von Scheibner richtig als Zeit der Gallomanie charakterisierten Periode nach der Mitte des 13. Jh. (von Eduard I. ab) statt⁵'.
